

PERU

By Esteban Rosas

Location

- Peru, being the third largest country (right after Brazil and Argentina in South America) has many biomes. It contains beaches, rain forest, mountains, and deserts. Half of Peruvian land is covered in the most largest, most wide rain forest, the Amazon. In the west coast of Peru, appears a narrow strip of a desert that only covers 10% of Peruvian land. There is a mountain that it's so big, this mountain is run all through Peru. And this mountain isn't even the tallest mountain in Peru!

History of Peru

- The first people to arrive at Peruvian area was approximately 15,000 years ago. Eventually some of the first societies were built 5,000 years ago. They were located at the west coast. The names are Monche, Chavin, and Nasca. Soon, more and more landmarks are made, like Machu Picchu. These places thrive for centuries until one day, they got conquered by the Spanish at year 1532.

Culture

- Many different people live in Peru. This includes people from India, Spanish, Europe, Asia, and African slaves (mostly their descendants). The most popular religion for all the Peruvians is the Catholic religion, this religion was introduced from the Spanish. But long ago, there was an even more popular culture. The name is Inca, that was made in Peru about 600 years ago. Another crazy thing is that the Inca created Machu Picchu! Machu Picchu is a very mysterious, but extremely famous ancient city that is built inside Andes.

Best things about Peru!

- The best thing about Peru is the variety of experiences in Peru. There are many biomes that have the wildest place in any rainforest, the hottest of any desert, to the height of the mountains. There are animals and plants there rarely found anywhere, but the rainforest has it all. They have many unique ways to do things like using llamas as pack animals. And most of all, I have people that came directly from Peru! I can already get the full experience, even at the comfort of my home.

FJH'S Benefits

- FJH has a huge benefit from this, and it's not only just the language! There are many more ways on how to use your manners. More things to eat that were never seen before. More ways to play and dance and sing. More living creatures to know when study. You get the idea, more and more different people can make the world more and more intelligent!

Credits

- Works Cited
-
- National Geographic. “National Geographic Kids.” Kids, 2015, kids.nationalgeographic.com/.